CARNEGIE ON PATRIOTISM.

Andrew Carnegie was the guest of honor at a dinner given by the Lotos Club in New York Saturday night. There were numerous speakers, chief among them being Mr. Carnegie, President Lawrence, of the Lotos Club; Seth Low and W. Bourke Cockran.

In the course of his speech Mr. Carnegie said: "To be popular is easy. To be right when right is unpopular is difficult. When the passions are roused and the war fever rages any man can be popular who howls for war; but the most valuable citizen of the state at that time will probably be the citizen who opposes the drawing of the sword. 'The heroes of political life are not those who stir the lowest passions of the people, but those who have stood against their government, demanding justice for countries other than their own.'"

"I repudiate with scorn the immoral doctrine, our country, right or wrong. If my country is wrong or my friend is wrong, I am their best friend if I endeavor to show both that for a moment they have been led astray, have deserted their path of honor or mercy or just as I have never written a word which my conscience did not impel me to write nor stood for a cause which I did not consider wholly holy. When my country is wrong may she receive the lesson that righteousness exalts a nation. 'The flag we all love and revere we love and revere for what it stands for. It should be the symbol of what is right, noble and just. He is no patriot who encourages his country to take the wrong path. Not he who follows, but he who leads, public opinion in the right path is the best citizen, who, above all others, should be most highly honored. 'As it has been said that the future of the English-speaking race is not to be found on the shores of the Tweed or Thames, but on those of the Hudson and Mississippi, so I say the future of shipbuilding is to be found not on the shores of Britain, but on our Atlantic seaboard. Our supplies of raw materials are superior to those of any other known part of the globe, and we have in the American workman, which our stimulating climate and our free schools, and I hope our free libraries produce a workman superior to any other that has appeared upon the earth. 'Private charity must be discriminating in order to be useful. More pauperism will be bred by indiscriminate charity. It is difficult to help those who do not help themselves, and my preference for free libraries as a means for helping the swimming tenth is that libraries give nothing for nothing; in order to get benefit there the man must himself read and study. As for money given to beggars, of whose needs and habits we are ignorant, I can conceive of no use of money so well calculated to increase pauperism and demoralize the people.'"

He Only Repeats What Has Been Said Around The World.
It has been demonstrated repeatedly in every State in the Union and in many foreign countries that Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is a certain preventive and cure for croup. It has become the universal remedy for that disease. M. V. Fisher, of Liberty, W. Va., only repeats what has been said around the globe when he writes: "I have used Chamberlain's Cough Remedy in my family for several years and always with perfect success. We believe that it is not only the best cough remedy, but that it is a sure cure for croup. It has saved the lives of our children a number of times." This remedy is for sale by all druggists.
